

ABSTRACT

Provided herein are methods and systems for illuminating environments, including aircraft environments. The methods and systems include facilities for providing both white and non-white illumination, with color and color temperature s control, in programmed response to inputs. Methods and systems are also provided for improving the addressing of light systems in a network lighting configuration.